IFLA Secretary General informed MLAS SC members on the decision of the IFLA Governing Board in December 2008 to give more attention to the WLIC and make it more financially sustainable, even there were few reviews of the World Library and Information Congress realized in the past by IFLA Professional Committee. IFLA Governing Board feels responsibility to bring IFLA Conference to the first decade of the 21st century.

Sinikka Sipila, member of MLAS Standing Committee and the member of IFLA Governing Board works as a member of the Finance review committee and the Congress review committee.

IFLA Secretary General informed on the process of reviewing the legal structure so that the ownership of the IFLA Congress comes back to IFLA. IFLA is taking all risk and it must have more control over finances.

She informed on the ongoing IFLA survey among IFLA conference delegates, standing committees, past chairs of national committees, sponsors, exhibitors and whole range of people connected to congress.

Congress usually costs IFLA over 2 million EUR, more than a whole operating budget of IFLA. IFLA Congress income from registration is just a half of the whole costs (1 million EUR). Sponsorship and exhibition costs income account approx. 600 000 EUR.

IFLA Governing Board would like to keep the high quality of the IFLA Congress. It depends on the size of congress centre to keep the size of the congress, quality of interpretation and a lot of volunteer time. Publishing of the IFLA Express costs are very expensive.

There was a workshop organized at the IFLA Headquarters in Haag on the topics how to use the new technologies as the communication and publishing tool at the IFLA Congress which should reduce the costs of the IFLA Express.

Jennefer Nicholson, IFLA Secretary General provided comprehensive information on on the next IFLA World Library and Information Congress 2010, 76th IFLA General Conference and Assembly to be held from 10th – 15th August 2010 at the Swedish Exhibition and Congress Centre (Svenska Mässan) in Gothenburg, Sweden.

The IFLA professional units (Sections and Core Activities) will remain responsible for their own unit level planning, within the framework of the IFLA 2010 - 2015 Strategic Plan. This Plan should be used as the guiding document by all units for developing and reviewing their action plans for the 2010 - 2011 period.

IFLA Governing Board tries to simplify the IFLA Strategic Plan. The aim of the strategic plan is that it becomes organizational one.

To connect the action plans of the professional units with the Strategic Plan, all units will be expected to include in their plan at least one action that can be measured against the Strategic Plan Priority Activities 2010 - 2011.

All instructions to the IFLA Strategic Plan implementation will be introduced to all IFLA professional units before / during the coming IFLA Congress in August.

Jennefer Nicholson mentioned that two members of the MLAS Standing Committee are members of the IFLA Governing Board so the Standing Committee will stay very well informed.

IFLA Secretary General introduced the tools of the new membership management system, which would allow IFLA to offer comfort for the information dissemination and communication, updating reports, sharing information on the new IFLA section members and it will reduce duplicated manual processes. It will be more open to to the IFLA members, web accessible and it will be more easier for IFLA section standing committee members to get information.

IFLA World Report 2009 / 2010 Possible MLAS involvement

MLAS Chair welcomed the guests Stuart Hamilton and Prof. Theo Bothma and she asked them to inform MLAS SC members on the IFLA World Report and she expressed the possible MLAS cooperation at the process of the World Report data collection.

Stuart Hamilton informed on developing the new version of the IFLA World Report during the last eighteen months.

World Report was previously developed by FAIFE Committee and the FAIFE World Report was available in print format only until two years ago.

FAIFE Committee decided to take full advantage of new technologies and asked the expert team of the University of Pretoria in South Africa under the leadership of Prof. Theo Bothma to produce a new version of the World Report completely based online and will be accessed by a graphical map interface / Google maps. A simple click on the country map links to the online country report. Stuart Hamilton has informed on the current beta testing phase of the IFLA World Report.

Stuart Hamilton draw MLAS SC members attention to some of the difficulties they had getting the information from each country and he asked for advice how to prove this process and take advantage of the fact that the World Report can be a rolling data collection process since now.

The global survey of IFLA members is a very complicated process and this was a Stuart Hamilton's PhD dissertation theme. In comparison with the previous way of collection of questionnaires by emails it will be more effective to collect data to the IFLA World report by an online form. For the IFLA World report presentation during the IFLA 2010 Congress in Gothenburg it is expected to have available data on 100 countries.

The team of Theo Bothma spent a months on communication with library associations while collecting data from various countries. There were many problems concerning the data collection: sending reminders, out-of-date contact information at the IFLA membership database, out-of-date contact information at the websites of national library associations, national library association websites were not available in English language, still difficulties to get data on the important IFLA member countries - there was no report from South Africa, where the project team was based, no report from Australia, Canada and many other countries.

Theo Bothma has recommended to send the data to the IFLA World Report until March 2010.

World Report originally was concerning FAIFE type issues / intellectual freedom issues in libraries, now it is much more expanded and covers information on more issues: copyright law, library activities in the field of social responsibility and more various topics, what makes the questionnaire to be more complicated than before. Stuart Hamilton informed on planned cooperation with IFLA Sections to take care on the correct information of certain areas.

Professor Theo Bothma demonstrated the new online version of the IFLA World Report to MLAS Standing Committee members.

He demonstrated more options of the online report formats: full report, customized report, country report, section report, etc. IFLA World report online version also makes possible to compare more countries across the various categories by comparative tables and comparative studies what was demonstrated by Prof. Theo Bothma to the MLAS SC members at the IFLA World Report demo version available containing data on more than fifty countries.

The next future extension of the project could contain previous reports online to make possible to compare the various categories at the various years at the same country.

Stuart Hamilton informed on the IT projects intense meeting held at IFLA Headquarters on the topics how to better use information technologies (as Jennefer Nicholson informed already) and one of the topics was bringing different IFLA databases together.

Stuart Hamilton informed on plans to develop a sort of social network / creating of profiles of IFLA Section Standing Committee members in each country to get easily contactable and linked to reports, conference papers, etc.

Hellen Niegaard put the question on the same possible perspective for all IFLA members. Professor Theo Bothma answered it could be a possibility.

Stuart Hamilton informed on previous discussion with Michael Dowling and Dough Newcomb how to involve the information developed for GLAD programme and library associations indicators.

Stuart Hamilton asked MLAS Standing Committee members for close cooperation at the library associations data collection process and later after the data quality control. Keith Michael Fiels and Janice Lachance discussed the topics of updating the database structure, Rosemary Gitachu expressed her own experience under the framework of South Africa library association.

Silvia Stasselova proposed to extend the database on information not only on IFLA member library associations but to cover the information on non-member associations too including the information on the number of libraries in the country, etc. Theo Bothma answered it is already covered in country overview.

Keith Michael Fiels, Janice Lachance, Theo Bothma and Stuart Hamilton discussed the topics of MLAS involvement in IFLA World Report Database.

IFLA Secretary General Jennefer Nicholson informed on the IFLA membership database to be the core IFLA database and IFLA World Report database is the value added product.

Stuart Hamilton summarized the workflow before the presentation of IFLA World Report at IFLA Congress 2010 in Gothenburg.

Keith Michael Fiels expressed his thanks to Stuart Hamilton and Professor Theo Bothma for great results they both showed.

Tore Andersen recommended to cover the introduction / methodology that the database contains the quality controlled information by various library associations, not by IFLA.

Theo Bothma confirmed the methodology is already available and that the quality of the database of course always depends from the correct data sent by associations.

Inga Lunden expressed her opinion that beta version is a great tool even it is not the final version. Professor Theo Bothma added he agree as it is always better to have at least a beta version than to have nothing.

Silvia Stasselova added that maybe the database could probably help IFLA to recruit new members when visible at the country map that there is not any IFLA member or not many of them in the country. She pointed to the possible reasons of data collection process caused by missing language skills in the certain country.

Jennefer Nicholson pointed to available online translation tools they could help to break the language barrier in many countries.

Hellen Niegaard as one of the members of GLAD Programme who came with the idea on wiki on the library law offered her help together with Janice Lachance and Keith Michael Fiels.

- Social, cultural, and religious activities

The SCCR is undertaking this fact finding mission “with a view of strengthening international understanding on exceptions and limitations.”

Strengthening, expanding, and harmonizing international copyright exceptions and limitations is a top priority for IFLA. To watch the atmosphere of IFLA Congress at live broadcasting on IFLA website or other international or national library portals should help to make IFLA Congress to be more attractive. She mentioned her experience from the Slovak Librarians Association conference. The live web broadcasting from the conference was fully sponsored by the private company and it brought many new participants the next year.
